Dhataratth Sandhinera is a scholar specializing in contemporary political movements, democratic development, and human rights in Thailand. Currently a lecturer at the Faculty of Social Sciences and Humanities, Mahidol University. His work critically engages with contemporary social movements, political participation, and the evolving landscape of democratic development in Thailand. His research explores the intersection of youth activism, regional identity, and state power, with particular emphasis on the dynamics of protest, decentralization, and the role of civic engagement in contested political spaces. Drawing on theories of social science and development, his scholarship highlights how marginalized voices challenge dominant narratives, especially in the context of human rights, security law, and the sociopolitical complexities of Thailand.
